

Identified the body at the morgue as that of Preller.

An application will be made to the Judge of the Criminal Court, as soon as the inquest is concluded, for a special Grand Jury to indict Maxwell, so that there may be an official and legal basis for any future action in the case, in the matter of arrest, extradition, etc.

Preller Murdered for His Money.

New York, April 16.—Inspector Byrnes said to-day that his men who had been detailed to look up the New York end of the St. Louis murder had ascertained beyond a doubt that Maxwell had never been in New York with Preller. Mr. Schlesinger, a relative of Preller who lives in this city, called upon the inspector and informed him that the identity of the man had been established, and that there was no further doubt that Preller had been murdered for his money. Inspector Byrnes has telegraphed all his information to the police of St. Louis and San Francisco.

Caught in a Trap.

San Francisco, April 15.—Captain J. W. Lee, Chief of Detectives in this city, this evening gives full details of the search for Maxwell, which shows conclusively that he sailed on the steamship City of Sydney, on Sunday last, for Auckland. The main points of the story, which is a remarkable record of waterfuge and cunning, is as follows: Maxwell bought a ticket over the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad, for San Francisco, on the 14th inst. He claimed to be a Frenchman, and that he had been in the city of St. Louis for a number of years, and that he was a Frenchman. Maxwell himself travelled under the alias of T. C. Danquiel, and claimed to be a Frenchman. He was taken from St. Louis to Halstead, where he was a sleeper on the Atlantic and Pacific. At the point he was taken out of the sleeper and put in with a single man, a resident of San Francisco, who happened to be the sole agent of the sleeper on the Atlantic and Pacific. This man, who happened to be a personal friend of Captain Lee, naturally had a good deal to say to his fellow traveler.

A FRENCH MASQUERADE.
He found him very fond of liquoring up, but his language was difficult to understand, as he spoke such broken English. He claimed to be a French Brigadier General, and said his pay was $25 per day. He claimed to be going out to service in Tonquin. He was constantly being asked questions, and asking: "What is this place?" At one station he asked for a cigar in such villainous French-English that the cigar dealer replied in French, whereupon the pseudo-Frenchman looked much embarrassed, and replied in English: "How much? How much?" The cigar dealer looked amazed, and rattled off more French, whereupon the traveler threw down two bits and stalked off. His companion chafed him about it, saying: "You are a fine Johnny Chapaud, and can't talk French. What do you do in your country?"

Maxwell became reticent after this, and didn't have so much to say to his companion, but he drank like a fish every day. When the train reached Tehachapi, the brakeman came through the train to take the names of passengers. This was on the Southern Pacific, to which the Atlantic and Pacific passengers were transferred at Mojave.

ANOTHER CHANGE OF NAME.

Maxwell was looking out of the window when the brakeman touched him on the shoulder and said: "Your name, please." The man colored and then paled, and stammered out "T. C. Danquiel, France," and in this strange form it appears in the passenger list, which was printed in all the papers in this city on the morning of the 12th. He appeared to have no luggage, except a satchel, and although he fills every other description of Maxwell, this man, who traveled with him for four days, declares that he was a dark, with ruddy tint showing through beneath. As he was constantly drinking he had a high color and might have passed well for a blonde. The train reached this city on Saturday afternoon, the 11th. The day fixed for the sailing of the Australian steamer, but owing to the fact that the English mails hadn't arrived, it was held over till Sunday, the 12th. When Maxwell reached San Francisco he climbed into the Palace Hotel "bus" and at the hotel was assigned to room 101. He put his name on the hotel register, "T. C. Danquiel, Paris." The peculiarity about the signature is that the S in Paris is a capital letter in height, coming up as high as P, and that the final S in Brooks, which is the name on the ticket he came over on, now in the Southern Pacific office, is made exactly the same. Experts in handwriting who examined the two signatures to-day, declared they were written by the same man. Danquiel spent no time around the office, which probably accounts for the fact that Conn Smith, chief clerk, didn't recognize him as talking with the description, as Smith has a wonderful memory for faces. Danquiel, or Maxwell, spent his time in the room and didn't take a meal at the hotel or restaurant table, but didn't even sleep in his room.

DESTROYING EVIDENCE.

The chambermaid declares that on the following day when she entered the room she found a mass of burned papers in the fireplace, which were evidently fragments of old letters. The bed had not been used. Maxwell was not noticed by a single person about the hotel, and it is evident that he slipped off early in the morning with his satchel and went aboard the City of Sydney. On the steamer he was noticed by several people, but opera-glasses, which were so prominent a feature of his equipment in St. Louis, were kept in the background. There is no question, however, in the mind of Captain Lee and Chief Crowley, that Danquiel and Maxwell are one and the same man. The chief danger now lies in the fact that Maxwell may give the steamer the slip at Honolulu.

Chief Crowley said: "In that case some trouble might be found in getting hold of him, as the Hawaiian authorities are very technical, and insist upon the fullest evidence of complicity in crime before they will turn over the prisoner."

It had been the opinion of detectives that Maxwell dropped off the railroad at some point before reaching Mexico and made for Mexico. They thought he wouldn't be apt to take passage to Australia, as he would know that when the murder came out he could be caught by cable like a rat in a trap. The story of the murder has created a great sensation in this city and has been the talk of the town during the day. The utmost interest is manifested in further developments.

ADDITIONAL LIGHT.

From Charles Montgomery, proprietor of the American Exchange Hotel in this city, was obtained a mass of information about Preller and also facts which cleared up the mystery of addresses in this city which couldn't be found last night. Montgomery is an Englishman of means, who has kept this hotel for twenty-five years. He is also head of the Plymouth Brethren on this coast, the religious organization to which the murdered man belonged, and he supports several missionaries. He said to-day in conversation with a Globe-Democrat reporter: "I knew young Preller well, and our church people here expected to see him before this. From Brother Owens, in New York, we learned that Preller was coming out here on his way to New Zealand and Australia. I had no letters direct from young Preller, but heard indirectly of his movements. He was a strongly religious young man, born, I think, in London, and had inherited great wealth. He gave freely to the church, and had established quite a reputation as an exhorter. He has been over once to New York, on business, but had never been out as far as this city. All leading members of the Plymouth Brethren in this city had been expecting Preller's arrival. He was due here two or three days before the date of sailing of the Australian steamer, but it was expected that he could be induced to remain over to the next steamer as his business was not pressing."

MEMBERS OF THE CHURCH.

"The names mentioned in the circular letter are nearly all those of prominent brethren or women associated in the cause. Mrs. Grierson is a lady active in the cause, whose brother is paymaster's clerk in the army office, at 36 New Montgomery street. Another name is Dora Olsen. She is a worthy Christian lady, a Norwegian by birth, who was housekeeper in my hotel for several years, about a month ago, when her health failed. Neither she nor Mrs. Grierson had any personal acquaintance with Preller. Brother Morse, whose name is given as in New Zealand, is now doing missionary work in Sacramento Valley. He came over to this country from Australia by the last steamer. Rev. Mr. Lee, also mentioned, is a leading brother in Danedin, New Zealand."

He was asked whether there was any ground for belief that Preller was mixed up in political quarrels and was assassinated in revenge for his views.

He said: "Most emphatically not. The thing is absurd on its face. No member of the Brotherhood is allowed to take any part in politics. I have lived here a quarter of a century, and have often been asked to run for office, but steadily declined because of my faith. The placard found on his dead body and the cross marked on his breast are merely devices to throw detectives off the scent. Preller was an extraordinarily modest young man, and though his large means allowed him to do much for religion, he never occupied a prominent place. He was the last man who could have anything to do with a political conspiracy."

In further conversation Mr. Montgomery said: "My theory of the matter is that Preller must have fallen in with Maxwell in New York or on the railroad, and probably took him to a band when he cashed his letter of credit. Preller was too much accustomed to traveling to carry large amounts of money on his person in bills or checks, but there's nothing improbable in his cashing a letter of credit in St. Louis for $500 or $1,000, which may have been sufficient temptation to murder."

The most convincing proof that Danquiel and Maxwell are the same man is that three parcels of baggage, shipped from St. Louis on Sunday, and numbered 000, 2000 and 2400, were obtained from the transfer office here, and a receipt for them was signed "T. C. Danquiel." These are the parcels shipped from St. Louis by Maxwell.

At the Palace Hotel, this city, it was learned that Preller was unable to open the trunk he had with him and sent for a locksmith, saying he had lost his keys. It was after the trunk had been opened that the large quantity of burned papers was found in the grate.

RIEL'S REBELLION.

The Forces from the East Are Closing In On Riel's Forces—A Battle Soon Expected.

St. Paul, Minn., April 16.—The Globe's Winnipeg special and Battleford dispatch of to-day says: "A small party of Indian horsemen drove off W. & Co.'s cattle from a ranch north of the Saskatchewan River. There is no prospect of following them until reinforcements arrive. Harry Nash's horse, nine miles north of Battleford, was burned yesterday. Other fires were seen last night in different directions. Two Indians who were seen near the barracks by a half-breed woman, were pursued by the police, but escaped by crossing the Saskatchewan on a cart-wheel. Devastation of farms near Battleford continues to-day. Ben Prince's being the latest victim. The Stoney Indians, who are gathered in the upper settlements, yesterday told friendly half-breeds they would burn the barracks and go south. Precautions were taken against a surprise, but no attempt has been made. No news has yet been received from Pitt, the reports in the papers about a massacre being merely sensational rumors."

Alex. McDonald this morning received a telegram from his brother, at Battleford, stating that the Indians were gathering around the town in small bands and acting in a threatening manner. There has been no word yet received from Fort Pitt regarding the situation at that point, and the fears are that the place has fallen into the hands of the Indians, and all the inhabitants massacred. The Hudson Bay Company's agent, however, does not regard the absence of news from that place as alarming and has no apprehensions regarding its safety. Intelligence from Fort McLeod to-day is that everything is satisfactory. The cattlemen are becoming reassured and there is little chance of stock interests suffering. A Clark's Crossing dispatch says that up to noon on the 10th Riel had no intention of attacking Prince Albert.

The reports so far as known, have no reliable information of the movements of troops, nor of the number now in the country. A telegram from the camp, twenty-three miles beyond Humboldt, gives the following regarding Middleton's advance: "There was a heavy rain again last night, rendering camping uncomfortable. During the night Indian signals were seen in the hills for a circuit of eight miles. The troops made an early start this morning. We camped last night at the south side of Vermilion Lake. General Boulton and his scouts joined us last night. The Tenth Grenadiers are twelve miles behind the General, with one gun. Boulton's troops and 'C' Company will make a dash through to Clarke's Crossing and secure the ferry. The balance of the troops will march on to within eight miles of the crossing, and camp for the night. Colonel Irvine will advance from Prince Albert so as to join us in time to surround Riel and his party. It is hoped."

The Seventh Fusiliers from London, under command of Colonel Williams, arrived in this city about 6 this morning. His battalion numbers 263 strong, twenty-six of this number being officers. They still remain here awaiting orders from the General to move. Colonel Otto's force has crossed the Saskatchewan, and will probably commence the march to Battleford early to-morrow. Otto hopes to reach Battleford by the 25th. His present force will be followed by the Simcoe and Midland battalions, make over 1,200 men in all.

A letter from Turtle Mountain, in the vicinity of Wakopa, says a band of American Indians numbering about 100 had passed through there on the 13th inst. and were going north, presumably to join Riel. They disturbed some settlers by breaking windows and endeavoring to effect an entrance into the houses. They killed some sheep and at one place, where a woman was alone in the house, they told her to get out or they would kill her.

Commission to Effect a Settlement.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 16.—The only reliable news from the West to-night is that Riel is still keeping in the background and waiting for the commission to effect a settlement with his people and himself. One of the prominent officials stated to-day that there would be no more bloodshed and in a few days all would be settled. Two thousand eight hundred troops have gone West from here, and Eagen, the Superintendent, says 400 under Colonel Scott will go to-morrow.

Prohibition Already in the Field for 1885.

PITTSBURGH, April 16.—The Prohibitionists are already outlining their campaign for the next Presidential election. Secretary Swager, of this city, in an interview to-day said: "The candidates will come—one from the strongest Northern State, the other from the strongest Southern State. Judge Hopkins, of New York, will almost certainly head the ticket, and Senator Colquitt, of Georgia, will likely be the candidate for the second place. Judge Hopkins, in 1882, polled 23,000 votes in the gubernatorial election. Although still a member of the Democratic party, we have had assurance that in the next Presidential election Colquitt will sever his allegiance from the old party and join us. The two men I have named will in all probability be our candidates three years hence."

Base Ball Schedule of Games.

DAYTON, O., April 16.—The schedule of games for the Inter-State Base Ball League was completed and adopted this morning. Dayton, Springfield and Youngstown, O.; Frankfort and Lexington, Ky., and Erie, Pa., are members. Each club plays ninety games—eighteen with each other club. The national agreement was signed by President Rockford.

Dead Body Found in the Canal.

CLEVELAND, April 16.—The dead body of E. F. Moore, a saloon keeper at Akron, O., was found in the canal to-day near a house of ill-fame. There are evidences of foul play.
